Abstract (en)

[origin: WO9642175A1] The invention relates to a terminal equipment and to a method for transmitting information not relating to a call to a telephone user in a cellular radio system comprising a number of terminal equipments (20a-20c) and base stations (22a-22c) communicating over a radio path, in which method information not relating to the calls is sent from the system to the terminal equipments (20a-20c) which display the information in a display unit (35). For conveying versatile information effectively to a terminal equipment user, the display unit (35) of the terminal equipment is controlled in such a way that the display unit (35) displays alternately call-related information and information not relating to the calls.
