Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0882420A2] The floor covering is provided with one or more strips of double-sided adhesive tape whereby to remove the floor covering this is first torn up and then the remaining residues of the tape strips are stripped from the floor and where applicable from the floor covering. The adhesive tape can be elastically or plastically extensible with or without intermediate carrier. The tape can be formed so that the adhesion is less than the cohesion which substantially removes the adhesive capacity during extension.
