Abstract (en)
[origin: EP0896865A1] A rotary pin stripper is disclosed for separating scrap pieces of paperboard from finish pieces after the pieces have been cut in a die cutter. In the preferred embodiment, the pin stripper cylinder (28) is supported at mid-length (44), and the stripper cylinder is readily released for replacement and/or repair, while also providing for torque transmission between two separate, axially extending sections of the eccentric cylinder (40). <IMAGE>
