Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0899396A2] The plates (1) have on their underneath supporting elements (3) whereby a centering part (2) fixed in the floor (B) engages between the supporting elements of one plate which is then locked in the horizontal direction. The supporting elements can be directly supported on the floor. They can be seized at the sides by the bearing faces of the centring member which have associated rear-cut section. The supporting elements can have cylindrical outer contours (10) interacting with suitable shaped bearing faces (9) of the centring part.
