Abstract (en)

A fastening device particularly for ski boots which have a shell to which at least one cuff is articulated and which can be used for mountain skiing. The fastening device has a rack (9) constituted by a body provided with a plurality of concordantly orientated teeth (11) for selective and temporary engagement with a cable provided in a lever which is associated with a first flap of the cuff. The body (10) is rotatably associated with the second flap of the cuff and a hook (14) is associated therewith. The hook (14) is orientated in the opposite direction with respect to the teeth (11) and is adapted to engage the cable. <IMAGE>
