Abstract (en)
There is disclosed a clip for identification cards which is comprised of two opposite elements (10, 20) joined and articulated to each other. A first rectangular laminar element (10) presents a J-shaped folded extension (12) formed from a cutting (11), and a second laminar rectangular element (20) which presents at one of its extremities (21) an extension (22) back folded itself, so that the J-shaped extension of the first element can be placed between the second element and the extension thereof, in this position a V-shaped clip is configured whereby the J-shaped extension acts as a spring, said clip being operated by pressing externally the diverging extremities (17, 21) of said clip. <IMAGE>
