Abstract (en)
[origin: DE19820444A1] The sprung mounting for a gas burner, at cooking stoves, has two pressure springs (6) to form two legs for a gas burner (16). The third leg for the gas burner (16) is formed by the connected gas pipe (66) and a fitting (52). The springs (6) are between two plates (2,4). One plate (2) has arms (12) towards the lateral slits (32) in the other plate (4), to be inserted into them on the lateral direction (10). The lower plate (4) is mounted to the recess in the top of the stove, while the upper plate (2) supports the gas burner (16).
