Abstract (en)

[origin: WO9843906A1] An apparatus for stacking flexible sheet-like products, such as industrial hides and similar objects, comprises a bearing frame (2) which supports a first movable surface (3) for the advancement of the products along a generally inclined direction (V), and a second movable surface (4) arranged at least partially under the first surface (3) for handling and unloading the products (P) on a gathering support (C, T). The second movable surface (4) is slidingly mounted on a carriage (7) vertically movable from a minimum height from the ground, while the first movable surface (3) is oscillably mounted on said frame structure (11) with its downward end connected to said carriage.
