Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0974282A2] The device has an identification tag (3) attached to the article and a reference part (4) to be stored separately. The two parts have a contact address which does not specify the owner address and a coding (9,12) by which the parts can be clearly classified with each other. The two parts are supplied fixed together and have an ideal separating point by which the reference part is separated from the identification tag. The two parts form part of a plastics card which can contain advertising space.
