Abstract (en)

[origin: EP0982238A1] The large flexible container consists of at least two layers on top of one another. The inner layer (8) is an uncoated fabric letting through air, while the outer layer (9) is provided with a dust-tight, moisture blocking coating. The two layers are joined to one another by means of special outlets (10) in such a way that air removal from the container can take place only through these outlets.
