Abstract (en)
[origin: DE19843252A1] The method involves loading and updating of postage table data in the postage computer, with reviewing of the stored postage date using the current date. The loading of new postage table data results at an user-defined first time, and the updating of new postage table data results at a second point in time defined by the respective post carrier. An Independent claim is provided for a corresponding arrangement implementing the method.
