Abstract (en)

[origin: WO9901257A1] An applicator pad comprising a generally cylindrical backing section (20) of a first type of foam and a generally cylindrical contact section (22) of a second type of foam. The foam of the backing section (20) has a different flexibility from the foam of the contact section (22). The backing section (20) and contact section (22) being attached together over a generally planar juxtaposed area thereof. The resulting pad can give any desired degree of cutting and polishing, and will have a consistent flexibility over its entire contact surface allowing it to be used more consistently and more accurately.
