Abstract (en)

[origin: WO9905940A2] A method for making a variable geometry and hardness mattress comprises the steps of providing a microcellular foamed material element and providing, by cross cutting the microcellular foamed material element, a plurality of throughgoing holes, in which a corresponding plurality of variable configuration supporting compensating elements, of variable configuration, are engaged. By this method a variable geometry and hardness mattress is provided, comprising a microcellular foamed material padding, including a plurality of variable configuration supporting compensating elements, engaged in throughgoing holes passing through the mattress padding, transversely of said padding.
