Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1002586A2] At least one additional disc or roller form application element(4) lying behind the application roller(2) viewed in the working direction of the device. The additional application element is rotatable around its centre pin(40) and is adjustable in its position relative to the application roller and to the workpiece(3) for adapting to the workpiece's deep lying surface area(33). A brush set(42) is provided on the periphery of the additional element for the removal of residual coating material(23) from the peripheral areas of the application roller.
