Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1030017A1] The lock for a building door has a drive for the slide (4) formed by a toothed rack (7) fixed to the bolt (1) and centred on its pivot axis (X-X). The toothed rack meshes with the rack (8) teeth on the slide. A lock stop has a lug (9) which can move with rotation of the bolt to a position in which the lug engages in a notch (10) formed in the slide and bias the slide into a position in which the teeth are opposed.
