Abstract (en)
[origin: EP1031660A1] The batten consists of an external base batten (G) having side plate (4) and two extendable side battens (A) each being half the width of the base batten and being displaceable in an outward direction. In the fully extended position of the side battens, the guides (S) are located on either side of the longitudinal center of the base batten in the opposite side batten.
