Abstract (en)
[origin: EP1033094A1] The invention which is the subject of this application relates to a foldable bed which can be moved between a folded position and an unfolded position with improved ease over conventional foldable beds and also allows the mattress of the bed to be made of the same length as the frame which supports the same without the mattress protruding beyond the end of the frame when folded. The frame comprises at least two frame parts, and typically each of the frame parts is pivotally movable with respect to a mounting plate, typically one provided on each side of the bed frame. <IMAGE>
