Abstract (en)
[origin: EP1035620A2] The connector part has a base unit (11) and a securing unit (17) that can be connected together and to an auxiliary unit (19) for pre-assembly of the connector part. The pre-assembled connector part is mounted on the attachment point using an attachment device (21). A check device (61) adopts a locking position with the pre-assembled connector part attached. The base unit and securing unit can be finally mounted, pref. by axially moving the auxiliary unit so that the attachment device is secured and the check device is released. The auxiliary unit can then be removed. Independent claim is also included for a method of mounting and attaching a connector part to an attachment point, especially on a vehicle door.
