Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1046583A2] The method for packing a rectangular heating device with sheet material comprises first fitting a section over two opposite narrow sides and then on to the narrow sides which are at right-angles to these. The sections of sheet material are folded so th they cover the flat sides of the device and the second section is applied so that it overlaps the first. An Independent claim is included for a device for packing a rectangular heating device.
