Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1053966A2] The releasable retainer comprises an adjustment screw element (23) which engages a female threaded element (22) which is rigidly coupled to a slider (18) which supports the brake support (17), and the entire adjustment system, which can move rigidly with the slider (18), is subjected to the action of at least one pair of permanent magnets (26'-26'') which are mutually opposite and whose identical poles face each other so as to repel each other in order to move the brake support (17) into a disengagement position in which the brake (15) is spaced from the drum (11) of the feeder (10). <IMAGE>
