Abstract (en)

[origin: WO9942180A1] The invention concerns a device for treating the human body using generators of coloured light waves and sound waves, essentially characterised in that it comprises a generator of coloured light waves associated with a sound wave generator; for each emission of a very specific dominant colour wave, selected among the colours of the rainbow, corresponds a sound wave emission of similar wave length and the coloured and sound wave generators comprise means for adjusting the intensity of said waves.
