[origin: EP1057556A1] A continuous slab casting mould has projecting water box ends (11') which accommodate clamping elements (7, 7') to form a mould plate clamping frame. A continuous slab casting mould has water boxes (3, 3') with ends (11') which project at both sides beyond both the broad side and narrow side mould plates (1, 2') and which accommodate clamping elements (7, 7') to form a clamping frame force-fitted in thermally conductive contact on the broad side plates (1).
