Abstract (en)
[origin: WO9941949A3] A replaceable cooktop for use with induction heating of cooking vessels is provided by separating the coil structures from the top surface. The top surface is a slab of an insulating material, such as wood, marble, or plastic provided with cavities on the lower side which correspond closely to the coil structures projecting from the mechanical structure below. The top is perfectly flat and may be used as a general kitchen worktable.
