Abstract (en)
[origin: DE19937697C1] The handle (4) of the floor wiper is fixed at the end to a support plate (22) with a cardan joint and when aligned perpendicular to the plate can be moved from a work position longitudinally through a second position where the handle is free-standing into a third position where the locking device (40) is released so that the swivel frame part can be swivelled out from the extended position. The support plate has a guide hole through which the handle moves into the third position.
