Abstract (en)

A product dispenser 30, typically for fuel, includes a visual display 40 connected to a computer 19 within a fuel station building. The computer 19 is programmed to transmit for viewing on the display 40 a slide show which may incorporate advertising material, announcements or other useful information that customers fuelling their vehicles may want to know. The computer 18 may download images from a central remote location 14 so that all fuel stations of a particular company are showing the same images. <IMAGE>
