Abstract (en)
[origin: EP1104829A1] The roller housing has a fabric roller (10) which holds a section of material (10a). The free end of the material is connected to a fall rod (13), and articulated arms are provided for extending the material out from the roller and into an active position. The material and the roller are held in a box (4) which is attached to e.g. the wall of a building and the articulated arms are located above the material section.
