Abstract (en)
[origin: EP1106750A1] The cover comprises a number of arched supports (2) extending between individual bearing points in pivot fittings in two spaced apart bearings (4). The supports are rotatably mounted inside these points and each bearing has one pivot fitting, all the rotation and pivot axes being essentially parallel. A canopy material (6) extends over the supports. An Independent claim is also included for the bearing device, in which the individual bearing points are preferably formed by bores provided in the pivot fitting.
