Abstract (en)
[origin: EP1108818A2] The method involves injecting a binding agent suspension from a number of bore holes distributed over a soil surface in a pattern. In a first phase nozzle jet injection is performed via a number of unpiped holes in a first pattern at different heights and in various directions. In a further phase a number of bore holes arranged in a different pattern is fitted with valve pipes or individual valves. Independent claims are also included for the following: an arrangement for implementing the method.
