Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1108821A1] The flush cistern (2) for a toilet has a connection to the toilet bowl (34). The connection can be by male-female couplings (28,41) some of which are connected to the bowl and other to the cistern. The male-female connection is a friction fit. The male connectors can be formed as ribbed pins of plastic material and all can be fitted to one of the cistern or bowl.
