Abstract (en)
The invention provides a shower screen enclosure assembly which in the preferred case comprises two shower screen panels connected edge to edge. At the free edges of the panels are mounting rails which are in two parts, namely a first part for connection to the wall, and a second part connected to the adjacent panel edge. Prior to mounting the panels on the wall, the said parts can be adjusted angularly so that when the panels are eventually mounted on the walls, they are mounted relative to the walls at angles selected by the angular adjustment of the parts of the mounting rails. <IMAGE>
