Abstract (en)
[origin: US6349857B1] A caulking gun requiring little space when not in use is provided. The caulking gun has an elongate receiving unit for holding a cartridge containing the product to be dispensed and a handle which, when the caulking gun is being operated, extends outward in a crosswise or diagonal manner relative to the elongate receiving unit. The handle may be moved into a position substantially parallel to the elongate receiving unit when not in use.
