Abstract (en)
[origin: EP1118736A2] The cover has sliding roof elements (1) and access areas (5) closable by removable closure walls (6) comprising door elements (7) which connect flat against one another and are connected together through articulated joints. The door elements can be pushed from the access area to the side in the direction of the outer edges of the roof profile. They move on a top guide rail (10) and can be pushed back at the outside edges without changing the door connection with the roof profile. The closure wall can be divided into an upper wall area (6a) which always remains and a lower wall area (6b) which consists of the door elements which can be moved out of the way.
