Abstract (en)
[origin: EP1118967A1] The machine has an external operating device, an internal magazine with several adjacent stack shafts, a central output opening and a feed device connecting the output opening to the shafts with a selector for moving goods from shafts and a guide device for delivering goods to the output opening. A movable detection device detects the goods selected via the operating device and drives the selector to move the goods from the corresponding shaft. Independent claims are also included for the following: a method of acquiring goods in several adjacent stack shafts, especially cigarettes, sweets, snacks, drinks, condoms or similar.
