Abstract (en)
What is disclosed is a method for manufacturing netting built up of wires, wherein said wires are entwined with each other, and strips of a flexible material are fitted between the wires. The flexible material may comprise a textile, a paper and/or a plastic, such as polyvinyl chloride (PVC), for example. Such netting can be used as a decorative object, as a wind screen, as a display, as a fence or a screen, as a lining material or as a net structure for guiding plants therealong or for inserting goods or products, such as flowers, therein. <IMAGE>
