Abstract (en)
[origin: WO0051691A1] A golf ball washing and transporting device that, by way of rotating brushes (1 to 8), not only washes the golf balls (10) but at the same time transports them to the required level so that the golf balls can be collected with no further means in a ball reservoir and whereby the flow of water from the sprayers (14) rinses the balls from the opposite direction so that the dirtiest balls are washed with the dirtiest water and as they gradually become cleaner they are also rinsed with the cleanest water, ensuring in this way an efficient washing effect using as little water as possible.
