Abstract (en)
[origin: EP1163934A2] The bag for golf clubs takes the form of an array of parallel tubes (26) held in place by means of plates (21, 22, 23), with the top plate(21) provided with holes for entry of club shafts. The top plate is further provided with a shaped rim with grooves (45) which are shaped and oriented so that golf clubs can be suspended from them in an ordered manner. For example, the grooves allow the clubs to be arranged side by side in a rising order of the angle of their impact surfaces.
