Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1175845A1] An applicator consists of a head with a surface that has through channels for the product and is mounted on a support with a fastening designed to co-operate with a matching fastening attached to a container. An applicator (1) consists of a head (2) with a surface (3) that has through channels (13, 14, 15) for the product and is mounted on a support (6) with a fastening (7) designed to co-operate with a matching fastening (33, 34) attached to a container (40). When the two fastening surfaces are joined together a seal (42) on the container is pierced by pointed projections (19, 20, 21) on the inner surface of the support, allowing the product to pass through the channels to the head surface.
