Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1180421A2] The structural element has a connection between a preferably flat glass element (21) and a body (22) made of material, especially concrete, which sets. At least one edge of the glass element is inserted into the setting material before hardening occurs so that the edge of the glass element, after hardening occurs, is enclosed and clamped in the set material. The setting material contains reinforcements (23,24) such as clamping cords or pipes
