Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1189187A2] The surveillance method evaluates images from at least 2 image recording devices (1,2) covering respective zones of the surveillance area, corresponding to critical and non-critical regions, separated from one another via an alarm boundary. The data relating to a detected position variation of an object in the zone covered by the first image recording device is supplied to the second image recording device. An Independent claim for a surveillance system is also included.
