Abstract (en)

[origin: WO0102532A1] The invention relates to a method for producing washing and cleaning agent shaped bodies which improves upon prior art tableting and extrusion technology with regard to protecting the constituents from thermal stress, pressure and shearing. The inventive method is also technically less complex, more economical, enables higher rates of production and requires little effort to produce three-phase or multiphase shaped bodies. The method includes the production of (a) shapeable material(s), the feeding of this material under a pressure of less than 40 bar to outlet openings, as well as the cutting off of the exiting strands of material and permitting the same to harden.
