Abstract (en)
[origin: WO0106894A1] A portable seated riser system includes a plurality of riser stations including decks and supporting frames. The decks and frames provide for a number of levels at different heights arranged in an ascending riser configuration. Portable theater seats can be mounted on the decks and include locks and supports mountable to the frames for moving and securing the theater seats to the stage. The locks include a support and a linkage that automatically extends around behind the rear of the stage decks and automatically lock to the mounting plates of the theater seats when inserted into the locks.
