Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1217130A1] The components form a connection via an opening (9) in an outer wall of a wide component (1), to a side component (2). The device comprises of a fastener part (11) and a threaded tube (12) screwed into it. One of these is fitted into the side component, which also has a hollow chamber with an inner fastener part (25). The first fastener part has elements (15) to connect it to the opening in the wide component, and one of its end sections has a zone, which is adapted to the component wall. The threaded tube has an outer fastener element (23), which acts with the inner fastener part of the side component.
