Abstract (en)

The lamp (6) of a headlight or similar light of a motor vehicle is withheld in the mounted condition by means of a retention spring (11) made of a metal wire substantially bent to form a U, with a central portion (12), rigidly connected to the body of the reflector dish (1), and two branches (15) having their opposite ends completely free, the said branches being designed to cause a resting element (9) forming part of the body of the lamp (6) to press elastically against a contrast surface (10) formed at the rear on the body of the reflector dish (1). <IMAGE>
