Abstract (en)

[origin: WO0157760A1] A system and method for providing a development program for a bioactive compound are disclosed. The system and method are typically computer-implemented and include software for prompting a user to input development data, for processing the user input development data, and for generating a development program output based on the input development data. Typically, the output includes information regarding the time, cost and materials needed to complete the development program.
