Abstract (en)
[origin: EP1262112A1] The cigarette paper packaging method involves forming stacked sheets (10) of the papers. It involves initially unreeling a paper web (7) and forming the stacks by cutting each web into sheets. Each web of paper is perforated sequentially at the level of two zones (4) situated at predetermined distances from each line of cut and the ends of the individual sheets. Claims include a cigarette paper made by the method and a machine for making the papers
