Abstract (en)

A selection process for automatic dispensers (100) is described which involves the following operating steps: defining, for each magazine (101) of the dispenser, at least a first series and a second series of compartments having primary and secondary picking-up priorities, respectively; allowing picking-up through the respective access member (105) from anyone of said plurality of compartments of the first series and allowing picking-up through the respective access member from anyone of the compartments of said second series exclusively following previous depletion of all products in said first series compartments. Also described is a device for putting said process into practice. <IMAGE>
