Abstract (en)

[origin: WO0194711A1] A log building in which round upright logs secured to a basement (4) form the load-bearing structure of the building or at least part of it, and which comprises horizontal round logs (2) forming walls between the upright logs, being fastened to these with securing elements. The horizontal logs of the building and in some cases even the upright logs are hollow logs, which are round logs with a cavity inside, which can be produced from a raw-wood log by sawing.
