Abstract (en)

A three-dimensional built-up toy with inter-connectable bases mainly includes at least one base 14 in the form of a flat piece having a plurality of insertion slots 141 formed thereon, and at least one figure 11 and a plurality of matching decorations 12 formed on and removable from the base. The figure and the plurality of matching decorations are integrally provided at lower ends with connecting sections 112 adapted to be inserted into any of the insertion slots on the base to hold the figure and the decorations to the base in an upright position. The base is provided along peripheral edges with coupling means 142. Two or more of the bases are inter-connectable to provide a large flat plane by engaging the coupling means on different bases with one another. <IMAGE>
