Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1342443A2] An anchoring element (8) designed as a circular head (7a) on a short shaft (7b), is permanently joined with a threaded bolt (11) to both sides of the rear of the rim of the toilet bowl and hidden underneath a rectangular transversally positioned cover (2). Triangular pieces (3), serving as a matching cover and as handles and provided with locking elements (6) joined to the inwards pointing sides, are attached laterally to the main cover (2). The anchoring element (8) can be inserted into a circular opening (5) positioned at each of the locking elements (6) and guided along the adjacent slot (4) into a locking position.
