Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1348903A1] The light fitting (1) has an elastic arm (62) which is curled around a shaft (41) in a first well (4) and commences from a vertical position. A locking bar in a second parallel well (5) is pushed upwards and causes the elastic arm to rotate until it is pressing against a false ceiling (12) through a grip (64) where it is locked by further movement of the locking bar. An Independent claim is also included for: Fixing which uses two parallel wells to house elastic support blade and locking bar
